Ahmad Al-Ajmi

A Front-end Developer and Web Enthusiast

A self-taught and a passionate developer who loves everything about the web.

Education

Bachelor of Commerce: Accounting (Zagazig University) / 2007 - 2011

+ A Lifelong learner

Work Experience

✓ Customer Service Representative - Vodafone Egypt / January 2012 - July 2012

Vodafone gives me the feeling of smart work to help people and understand what they really need and I think this will help me so much as a developer by understanding users needs and making their life easier.

✓ Web developer - KickStartInteractive / July 2012 – Present

Responsible for the Front-end development using standard and clean HTML5 and CSS3 code.

Personal Projects

✓ Ontwik

My first project I created to collect and share the most useful conferences talks and lectures. I'm very proud of this project as it helps a lot of people learn new technology and also helped me to learn, explore and love the web development.

I also built a version with the Django framework but didn't publish it to the public yet, you can see it online.

✓ Ajmi

A Mobile First Responsive One Page Template I'm working on these days as a side project.
This is an interesting project that helped me to experiment with Responsive Design and the Mobile First approach.

✓ My Blog

My blog where I can share my thought with the world.

Built on top of the Jekyll framework and it's open source.
